Accelerating Local Energy

Company Overview

Nokomis Partners is a Minneapolis based energy developer with a mission to accelerate local energy adoption through equitable partnerships. Our approach is predicated on creating value for all stakeholders involved in a project. We specialize in understanding the full development process from origination, to technology, to long-term operation.

Our value comes from our 25+ years of combined experience, in market resources and partnership approach. Through a combination of development and consulting services we use distributed energy to deliver economic and social benefits to local communities.

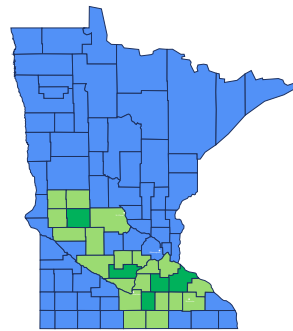

Project Services

Origination & Ownership: We participate in origination and full development of our own and jointly developed solar & storage assets. Our focus is on Community, Commercial, Industrial and Utility Scale opportunities in the Upper Midwest, primarily situated on the distribution grid.

Consulting: Development is a fast-moving, quick decision making game. Experienced development professionals and local expertise can be the difference between making the right and wrong decision. We provide national firms with flexible, high-quality development resources across all market types.

Product Services

Consulting: Projects and Products need each other. We leverage our experience and development work to help clients make the leap from technical solution to product and get their solutions to market.
